Day 11 Kona, Hawaii Tender Arrive: 08:00

Tender Depart: 18:00

Much of this drier region resembles a desert but the shapes of the hills and the way rain snags on ridges means Kona holds hundreds of microclimates. Coffee growers have flourished here as variations of only a few feet in altitude can result in very different brews. Some farms cover barely an acre while others sprawl enough to encompass two or three varietals.

Thankfully, plenty of places exist to play and burn off a little caffeine around Kona. History lies thick on the ground, from Kamehameha's heiau (temple) to the sacred buildings of Puuhonua O Honaunau ("The Place of Refuge"). Whales love Kona, spinner dolphins live up to their names and giant mantas slowly barrel roll up from the depths.

Day 15 Cruising Equator

The equator is an essential component of our planet's geography, even though it's just an imaginary line drawn on a map. In addition to being the widest spot on the planet, a full 43 kilometres wider than at the poles, this is also the planetary dividing line for the Coriolis effect. This explains why cyclones rotate clockwise north of the equator and counterclockwise south of it. It's also the place best suited for launching spacecraft because the gravitational pull gives rocket ships an extra boost out of the stratosphere.

For a bit of light-hearted fun, if you're onboard a craft where any of the crew are crossing this imaginary line for the first time, you'll likely witness a King Neptune (or Crossing the Line) ceremony. This ancient naval tradition puts newbies, or "Pollywogs," through a series of pranks and tests to prove themselves worthy of being a son or daughter of Neptune, the Roman god of the sea.

Day 18 Pago Pago, American Samoa

Arrive: 08:00 - Depart: 17:00

Pago Pago's small size belies its historic stature and epic setting. The city lies along the shore of Pago Pago Harbour, which was carved from thousands of years of volcanic-crater erosion on Tutuila Island. The fjord-like harbour, one of the most stunning in the South Pacific, is bordered by steep and lush hills and dominated by Rainmaker Mountain.

The protected harbour site was selected in 1872 by Commander R.W. Meade as a fuelling station for the U.S. Navy. Meade negotiated the real estate deal with a Samoan high chief and the resulting naval base at Pago Pago was in use from 1900 to 1951.

Pago Pago itself is tranquil as far as capital cities go, though there is commerce and activity in the areas of Fagatogo and Utulei. The hills near the seafront are dotted with houses, while a variety of shops line the street that runs in front of the dock itself. The best views of the harbour and downtown can be had from the summit of Mount Alava in the National Park of American Samoa.

The Itinerary

Overnight: Holland America's Zaandam
Meals included: Breakfast; Lunch; Dinner

Day 19 Cruising International Date Line

Travellers flying or cruising across the Pacific Ocean get to experience the only-one-place-in-the-world feeling of adding or losing a day within the span of a second. The International Date Line is the longitudinal boundary between where one day starts (to the west) and another day ends (to the east). It runs roughly along the 180th meridian of longitude in the middle of the ocean with some exceptions in the southern Pacific, where sovereign islands opted for one side over the other for commercial reasons.

Please note: As you travel west, your clocks will be wound forward 24 hours and you'll effectively jump forward a calendar day as you cruise towards Apia.

Overnight: Holland America's Zaandam
Meals included: Breakfast; Lunch; Dinner

Day 20 Apia, Samoa

Arrive: 08:00 - Depart: 17:00

The remote Polynesian nation of Samoa boasts a dramatic volcanic landscape with vibrant green jungles. Samoa's capital, Apia, sits midway along Upolu's north coast. This sprawling metropolitan area features a waterfront promenade and Beach Road, an avenue curving along the harbour where the Royal Samoa Police Band marches and hoists the national flag at Government House on weekday mornings. Check out their sharp ensembles, which feature navy lavalava (kilts) and blue dress shirts.

Adventurers will want to make a splash at Palolo Deep National Marine Reserve near Apia harbour, while bookworms should make a beeline to the home and grave of Robert Louis Stevenson. Perhaps the best way to experience fa'a Samoa is by visiting the small villages scattered throughout the two islands. Here, you'll see locals still living in traditional fale which feature round thatched homes with no walls. All the better to enjoy the ocean breeze and cook on umus (ovens) of hot stones placed in shallow holes in the ground.

It's the kind of spot that made mariners of old leave their ships and settle on land. The city of Suva, holds three-quarters of the nation's population. Day 50 Fremantle (Perth), Australia (Overnight)

Arrive: 08:00 - Overnight

Despite being one of the most isolated capital cities in the world, Perth often paves its own way when it comes to food, fashion and art.

Fremantle was first settled in 1829 by Swan River colonists as free colonies. Historical relics abound, from the Fremantle Prison and the Round House to the Fremantle Market Hall, where shoppers once arrived by horse and carriage. These sights now share the spotlight with art galleries, breweries and designer boutiques.

In the city centre, the modern towers of mining and financial firms also contain inventive restaurants and rooftop bars. Nearby are Perth institutions like the Art Gallery of Western Australia, Kings Park and Botanic Garden. Don't miss the creative neighbourhoods of Subiaco, Leederville and Mount Lawley.

With the Swan River at its heart and kilometres of Indian Ocean shoreline at its edge, Perth is an ideal city for a stroll, bike ride or sundowner on the water.

Arrive: 08:00 - Depart: 17:00

Established in 1826, Albany was the first European settlement in Western Australia with its historic heart and modern waterfront. The area's most striking features predate the original settlement. In the interior, the peaks of Stirling Range reach heights of more than 1,000 meters and offer opportunities for day hikes with breathtaking views.

During the 19th century, Albany played an important role as a centre of shipping between Britain and its Australian colonies, as it was long the only deepwater port on the continent. It was through Albany that some 40,000 Anzac troops departed for Europe.

The Whaling Station here has been converted to a fascinating museum on the history of the industry. It has the distinction of being the operating station in both the Southern Hemisphere and the English-speaking world. Humpback, southern right and blue

Long roads run arrow-straight through the fields, scrub and dense gum forests of this spectacular unspoiled destination. It remains one of the best places to see Australian marsupials in the wild so keep an eye out for koalas, echidnas and a million or so Tammar wallabies. Weighing just 5 to 7 kilograms, these mini-roos flourish here thanks to a dearth of foxes and other mainland predators. Marine mammals also make a healthy showing on Kangaroo Island so take the chance to walk through one of the country's largest sea lion colonies and watch for rare southern right whales offshore.

The Itinerary

Port Arthur offers a fascinating introduction into the history and culture of Tasmania. About a 100-kilometre drive southeast of Hobart, Tasmania's capital, Port Arthur is best known for its past as a penal colony. The Port Arthur convict settlement, which spreads over 100 acres, operated from the 1830s until 1877.

Today, its stone buildings make up one of several UNESCO-designated Australian Convict Sites on Tasmania. The whalers, miners, farmers and bushrangers who once lived in this region have given way to artists, foodies and rock climbers. The dramatic landscape ties it all together, infusing the identity of the people as well as the incredible food, drink and culture scene. From the towering sea cliffs around Port Arthur to Hobart's historic Salamanca Place, southeast Tasmania holds much appeal for adventurous travellers. Add in artisan wineries and distilleries, and possibly one of the world's strangest museums, and you have a destination that's easy to fall in love with.

Other Important Information

TOUR GUIDE VS. TOUR LEADER

Tour Guide

Often locals with intimate knowledge of an area, its culture, and history. Their role entails providing commentary, routing the tour, and seeing that people have a good time. They are a licensed, qualified expert who supplies specific information on the history, art, architecture and culture of the city/village/attraction where they are guiding the tour. The guide meets the group at the required place and leaves it at the end of the tour; they do not travel with the group.

Tour Leader

Their role primarily includes assisting with accommodation, transportation between locations, and communication with tour guides at each stop. A tour leader may provide general guidance around a city or village and offer information on the place visited on the bus. However, they are not required to have specific art, architecture, or historical knowledge. They are not allowed to provide a guided tour or commentary of a city/village/attraction once there and, if caught doing so, can be fined.

Supplier Fees

In the event the tour package you have purchased is unable to proceed, and/or a Travel Supplier is unable to fulfil the tour due to external circumstances (Limitation of Liability e.g. a Force Majeure event), there may be a fee or amount of money that is withheld by our Suppliers and is unrecoverable. This may be due to non-refundable airline tickets, cancellation penalties with cruise cabins or unrecoverable payments with our land/accommodation partners. If refunds are not available from Suppliers, we will endeavour to obtain a travel credit on the best terms available and communicate these outcomes to you. In the event we are unable to obtain a refund or travel service credit, or part thereof, this cost is passed on to the customer as a Supplier Fee.
