Day 12 The Seabourn Falkland Experience

Arrives: 13:00

There is nowhere else in the world like the Falkland Islands. This archipelago is a remote, wind-swept place of stunning landscapes, dazzling white sand beaches, magnificent wildlife, and a rather gregarious mix of people. Over 200 islands surround the two main islands of West and East Falkland. These isolated and treeless shores are home to an overwhelming abundance of birdlife: albatross, penguins, caracaras, geese, and many others.

Perhaps it was the very remoteness of the islands, the allure of its barren landscapes, pure in their austerity and colourful in their details, and the immensely large open skies that attracted settlers to its shores long ago. These islands have accumulated a wealth of maritime and military history, including more than three hundred shipwrecks and memorials of the recent war between British and Argentine forces in 1982. Numerous claims for the islands have been put forward in the course of their history. Nowadays the Falkland Islands are a self-governing British Overseas Territory.

Overnight: Seabourn Venture

Meals included: Breakfast; Lunch; Dinner

Day 13 Stanley - Falkland Islands

Departs: 17:00

The lonely lighthouse at Cape Pembroke welcomes arrivals to Stanley. It alerts ships to the treacherous rocks, reefs and shoals for which the Falkland Islands have long been known.

Founded in the 1840s, the town was named after Edward Smith-Stanley, Earl of Derby, who never visited the islands. With a population of over 2,000 people, Stanley is the largest settlement on the islands. Its gardens, tea rooms, brightly coloured houses and hotels lend it a slightly Victorian feel, seemingly suspended in time. The Anglican Cathedral, the southernmost in the world, stands prominently on Stanley's waterfront.

The Falklands' unique abundance of wildlife is evident in Stanley. Dolphins visit its harbour, while steamer ducks, kelp gulls, and other birds abound on shore. Southern sea lions might be spotted basking in the sun. Southern giant petrels often fly through town, oblivious to the human presence.

Antarctica Packing Guide

You don't need a lot of gear, just the right gear and this is your "must-have" list for Antarctica.

- Base Layer - Long underwear that's breathable, mid-weight thermal tops and bottoms that provide warmth without bulk. We suggest travelling with two sets.
- Insulating Layer - Expedition tops and bottoms that's worn over your base layer and under your waterproof pants and jacket. You may wish to choose expedition weight thermals or select comfortable, insulating shirts and pants made of "state of the art" performance fabrics that move and flex with you. Warmth and insulation are key for this layer.
- Lofted, insulating "puffy" vest. While your complimentary PolarShield Parka Set includes a jacket insulated with Primaloft, you'll appreciate the versatility a similarly lofted vest adds to your adventure wardrobe. Such a vest is a wonderfully flexible piece to wear onboard, on deck or as an added layer during times of "exceptional" weather. The loft retains heat with remarkable efficiency, is feather-light and compacts for easy packing.
- Outer Layer - Waterproof pants as you'll be "ship bound" without them. Waterproof is essential (but not breathable in this instance as you don't want moisture seeping through the fabric's pores while seated in the Zodiac or sitting in a snowpack onshore). Loose fitting and wide leg width are preferred (without zippers so you can easily tuck them into your knee-high waterproof boots).
- Footwear - Knee-high, insulated, waterproof boots are provided for your use with compliments while you are onboard your expedition vessel (you are fitted and size selections are made once you're onboard). For those with special footwear needs, you may wish to rent overshoe boots which are made to be worn over your own custom, orthopaedic footwear.
- Socks - Heavyweight "over the calf" boot socks made of wool or wool blend.
- Gloves - Insulating waterproof gloves or mittens with removable liners. The liners can be worn as "stand alone" gloves/ mittens during warmer moments or when reducing bulk to hold your camera, binoculars or smartphone. You'll also need neoprene paddling gloves if you opt to have a kayak experience.
- Headwear - You may wish for an additional, versatile piece of headwear or neckwear such as a balaclava or neck gaiter. It's great to have on hand during a windy, wet or snowy weather event.
- Trekking poles: A lightweight, collapsible/ telescopic walking staff (also called a trekking pole) provides a sense of security, increased balance and confidence when walking on ice, snow and rugged terrain.
- Waterproof sacks and cases - Heavy-duty waterproof sacks and cases specifically designed to protect your smartphone, camera, film, binoculars and carry in your backpack.
- Foot/Hand warmers - To put between your feet and your socks and your hands and gloves for extra warmth.
- Binoculars: Compact, high-performance binoculars ensure you don't miss a thing. A pair of 8" x 26" (8 power magnification and 26mm objective diameter) is recommended for ease of viewing, travelling and packing.
- Other - It's also recommended to pack a pair of good sunglasses, glacier glasses or goggles with U.V. filter protection, sunscreen, lip balm and sunscreen. Participating in the offered activities on this itinerary will require good mobility, generally good health, and the ability to care for oneself in all activities of daily living. Guests should be capable of negotiating uneven and slippery terrain ashore including rocks, snow and ice. At ports of call, you will embark and disembark the ship either by using a gangway or, in ports where the ship anchors in the harbour, by small rubber landing crafts (Zodiacs). In ports where Zodiacs are used guests who participate in excursions, and landings and wish to visit tender ports of call must be able to negotiate 10-12 steep internal stairs and get in and out of small rubber landing crafts (Zodiacs) with limited assistance. Due to the small nature of these landing crafts, Seabourn are not able to transport wheelchairs or scooters with guests. While every effort is made to assist guests, Seabourn hopes you understand that they are unable to provide staff members who can spend all or most of their time working with a single guest in order to address ongoing special needs. Guests who will require that level of care will need to travel with a companion who will be able to provide them with the assistance they require.
